It is alleged that the system of taking thumb impressions of patients is exceedingly annoying to the patients though it does not ensure an adequate check against the wilful manipulations of accounts by the pandits in charge of the institution. Column 2 of the Daily Sick Patient Register is intended to show the number of patients (old and new) who attended the Vaidyasala on each day. The entries in this column begin with 1 every day and end with a particular numeral, at the close of business, which should correspond with the no shewn under the column "Daily total" in the Register of Statistics kept in the Office. Hence it is desirable to retain the column no 2 of the Daily Patient Register. To meet the suggestion of the President of the District Board of Bangalore it is submitted that there is no objection to enter the no on the tickets of patients who resort for repetition of treatment in Column 1 of the Daily Patient Register

Sir,

I have the honor to state that the Townspeople of Tarekere represented to me both in person and by petition that the practice in vogue of taking thumb impressions from patients in Column 11 of the daily sick patients Register maintained in the Hindu Vaidyasala is a source of annoyance especially to the female patients since the pandit himself is often obliged to catch hold of the patient's thumb, dip it in ink and press it on the nominal register in the proper place and prayed that the practice

may

may therefore be discontinued. This matter was brought before and discussed by the Board in the District Fund meeting convened on the 25th September 1907. The Board resolved that the present system of taking thumb impressions from the patients should be discontinued and that a reference be made to Government for its discontinuance. Vide extract from the Board proceedings herein enclosed.

2. If the system of taking thumb impressions is intended to check fraud on the part of the Pandits, I beg to recommend that country medicines required for the Hindu Vaidyasalas may be ordered to be prepared and supplied from the Mysore Indigenous Hospital upon indents in lieu of the contingent allotted to each Vaidyasala as is done in the case of local Fund Dispensaries to which country medicines are supplied from the medical stores and that the system of taking thumb impressions may not be insisted on.

The Amildar of Maddagiri reports that the daily attendance of patients in the Vaidyasala ranges from 10 to 15 and the Physician is reported to be very popular and useful to the villagers by promptly attending to their requirement.

The building in which the Dispensary is now located is reported to be not spacious enough. The registers prescribed in Government Proceedings No. 3572-80/LB.21-05-5. dated 30th September 1905 are quite suitable and do not require any alteration.

Thumb impressions of patients in Hindu Vaidyasalas.

Mr. Tirunarnaiengar, Channarayapatna Taluk.

Summary of discussion.—It is said that orders are in force for taking the thumb impressions of patients resorting to Hindu Vaidyasalas in the registers maintained in them. This is a source of annoyance to respectable men and women. The order requires revision to avoid unnecessary expense to the institutions and to render them more popular.

Reply of Government.—The taking of thumb impressions will be ordered to be discontinued.
